DeWit Handpainted Delftware

Sometimes the term delftware is used to describe any blue and white ceramic item. However, authentic beautiful delftware is hand painted by experienced artists and tin-glazed by a process developed over centuries. The results are one-of-a-kind items treasured by knowledgeable owners.

Delftware is named for the Dutch city of Delft. In the late 16th century, prohibition closed Dutch breweries. Many of the vacated buildings were used by the fledgling, but growing delftware industry. The development of the tin-glazing techniques evolved slowly through many countries from the Orient to Italy. It was perfected by Dutch artisans.

The handpainted delftware sold by Nelis Imports is made in Holland by the DeWit Company. DeWit has a long European tradition. They excel as a high quality but affordable producer of the beautiful unique pieces shown in this catalog

All authentic DeWit delft products are of true Dutch origin and are exquisitely hand painted. They can be identified by an imprint showing the factory mark, item number, and the artist's initials. The DeWit imprint is shown here.

We also provide a "DeWit Certificate of Authenticity" with each piece you order.

The handpainted delft pictured in this catalog represent designs created by artists for the DeWit Company. Please keep in mind that designs will vary by artist and from each shipment received.
